Is Enstrom's Almond Toffee perishable?

Even though Enstrom's Almond Toffee is a perishable dairy confection, it is shipped frozen and travels very well even in warm weather when the toffee will thaw during transit. We recommend refreezing or refrigerating the toffee for at least an hour immediately upon receipt so the candy will return to proper consistency before opening. Enstrom's Almond Toffee should not be stored at room temperature.

How is Enstrom's Almond Toffee Made?

Following a half-century-old family recipe, the Enstrom candy craftsmen make every batch of almond toffee by hand, using only the finest of nature's ingredients. First, we mix sweet cream butter with cane sugar and plump California almonds in copper kettles. We then bring this bubbling, aromatic mixture to its peak flavor-break with precise temperature control and pinpoint timing. Next, we pour the confection onto specially designed water-cooled tables where we add a generous coating of pure milk or dark chocolate. Finally, we cover the toffee with a delicious layer of crushed almonds, break it by hand into box-sized pieces and ship it fresh to candy-lovers around the world.
